Albert Park is Chair Professor, Division of Social Science, and Professor of Economics at the Hong Kong University of Science and Technology. Prior to joining the faculty of HKUST, he was a Professor of the Economy at the University of Oxford, and was a faculty member of the U-M Department of Economics from 1997 to 2007. His research interests include Economic Development, Transition, Labor, Applied Microeconomics, and Chinese Economy. He completed his BA in Economics at Harvard in 1988, and his PhD in Economics at Stanford University in 1996.

Dwight H. Perkins is the Harold Hitchings Burbank Professor of Political Economy, Emeritus at Harvard. Previous positions include Director of the Harvard University Asia Center, Associate Director of the East Asian (now Fairbank) Research Center, Chair of the Department of Economics, and Director of the Harvard Institute for International Development. Perkins has authored, coauthored, or edited 20 books and numerous articles on economic history and economic development, with special references to the economies of East and Southeast Asia. He received his BA from Cornell and his MA and PhD in Economics from Harvard.

Penelope Prime is Professor of International Business, Institute of International Business, J. Mack Robinson College of Business, Georgia State University. Her research focuses on the development of emerging markets, with an emphasis on China’s economy and business environment. Her most recent books are Global Giant: Is China Changing the Rules of the Game? (co-edited with Eva Paus and Jon Western, Palgrave McMillan, 2009) and Taiwan’s Democracy: Economic and Political Challenges, (co-edited with Robert Ash and John W. Garver, Routledge, 2011). She completed her BA in Chinese Studies at the University of Denver, and her MA and PhD in Economics at the University of Michigan.

Thomas Rawski is Professor of Economics and History at the University of Pittsburgh. He has written extensively on the economy of China. After completing his doctorate in Economics at Harvard University, Rawski participated in diplomatic tours of China as a member of a delegation dedicated to the study of rural industry and, as such, regularly visited China throughout the 1970s and the 1980s, and joined the University of Pittsburgh’s faculty in 1985. His research focuses on the nature and implications of recent developments and long term changes in the economy of China.

Sponsored by the Lieberthal-Rogel Center for Chinese Studies
University of Michigan
Suite 4668 SSWB
1080 South University
Ann Arbor, Michigan

For more information, please contact 734–764–6308
chinese.studies@umich.edu
www.ii.umich.edu/lrccs.
The Lieberthal-Rogel Center for Chinese Studies presents a symposium to honor the late Robert F. Dernberger’s long and distinguished career in Chinese economics. Panel and round table discussions with his former students and colleagues will take place on Friday morning, October 30th at the Ross School of Business.

9:15am-11:00am: Panel One

Chair: Yuen Yuen Ang, U-M Department of Political Science
Discussant: Kenneth Lieberthal, Brookings Institution
Panelists: Yasheng Huang (MIT) China's Growth Model in Transition
Dwight Perkins (Harvard University) China’s Slowing Economy
Thomas Rawski (University of Pittsburgh) Historical Influences on China’s Contemporary Economy

11:15am-12:45pm: Panel Two
Chair: Jing Cai, U-M Department of Economics
Discussant: Nicholas Lardy, Peterson Institute
Panelists: Gene Chang (University of Toledo, emeritus) China’s Financial Markets and the Recent Turmoil
Albert Park (Hong Kong University of Science and Technology) Labor Market Conditions and Structural Change in China
Penelope Prime (Georgia State University) The Changing Economic Landscape: The Rise of China’s SMEs