ANCIENT STONE TOOL ANALYSIS:
HUMANS THROUGH THE LENS OF LITHICS

Learn how to look through the windows to the past

Hands-on!

Work with Real Artifacts from the Museum!

Summer 2023
MW 10-1
3 Anthro Credits
STRESS AND SOCIETY: UNDERSTANDING THE EMBODIMENT OF SOCIAL INEQUALITY

Why do humans experience stress? Is stress a psychological or a physiological phenomenon? How can stress explain health disparity?

This course examines the biology of stress and will equip you with the tools to evaluate different cases of social inequity and health disparities, based on factors such as gender, socioeconomic status, race, environment and trauma.

ANTHRBIO 297 section 201
Summer 2023 | MW 1-4 | 3 credits
Instructor: Paloma Contreras (palomacz@umich.edu)

Fulfills: Natural science distribution | Anthropology major | Biological Anthropology minor | Evolutionary anthropology major

designed by: samsa@armasecretas.com
Occult Forces: Anthropology of the Supernatural

Summer 2023
ANTHRCUL 298
T Th 1-4 pm
3 Credits. Fulfills SS Req.

Instructor: Janaki Phillips
janakip@umich.edu
Raised on Words
Anthropology of Child Language Socialization

Summer 2023 || ANTHRCUL 299.201 || TuTh 10 a.m. – 1 p.m.

Instructor: Moniek van Rheenen (moniekvr@umich.edu)

What’s up with baby talk? What does it mean to be literate? Is the Internet corrupting the youth? How do children acquire language? In this summer course, you will explore how linguistic anthropology can give us answers to questions about how children are socialized into language through social interaction. During this course, we will explore linguistic and cultural practices across different contexts and reflect on our own personal experiences to understand the role that language plays in the shaping of ourselves through childhood and beyond.

three credits – no prerequisites – fulfills LSA Social Science (SS) distribution – counts toward the Anthropology major & minor