

Carrie Arbour Scholarship Application

The Carrie Arbour Scholarship* assists "worthy and needy students" in Classical Studies. Undergraduate students in all departmental majors are eligible (students in minors are not eligible). It serves primarily to help students who could not otherwise afford study abroad, both in the summer and during the academic year. The Scholarship will, for example, assist students who are working on excavations, attending summer schools, or participating in programs such as the Intercollegiate Center in Rome. It may also be used for other summer programs. Recipients of the Scholarship are required to write a brief report about their experience for the department's website and/or newsletter.

Describe the program in which you hope to participate.

Briefly explain how it will contribute to your academic program and intellectual development.

Are you eligible for financial aid at U of M?

If not, explain your financial need for this scholarship.

Attach a detailed budget. If you have requested financial support from another source, list it here.

You must obtain approval from the Director of Undergraduate Studies in consultation with your Classical Studies Advisor (they will send an email indicating their approval)

Applications are due March 1.
