Over 107 days. That was the projected time required for just one small dataset a group of Political Science researchers had to process. Then, LSA IT’s High Performance Computing specialists were called in to help. The result: processing time was reduced to just four minutes. This got the researchers' timeline back on track and enabled them to focus on what was most important: exploring their questions—much more quickly and interactively than ever before.

Campus-wide and local cluster computing resources for research, including training classes and workshops. Let LSA IT help you create the solutions you need for your work as well.
