The Program in International and Comparative Studies (PICS) seeks to be a focal point for the interdisciplinary study of issues that transcend borders. We encourage students and faculty to broaden their horizons while they deepen their knowledge of particular cultures and political, economic, and social contexts.

Overview of International Studies

The major in International Studies offers students the opportunity to take a set of courses across disciplines to bring multiple methods and concepts together to address global problems. The major is rigorous and offers a balanced approach between disciplinary structure and depth and cross-disciplinary flexibility and breadth. Students create a curriculum from across the college and university aimed at developing broad understanding of the causes and effects of global challenges and potential redresses. The International Studies major aims to develop students’ skills in moving among different units of analysis and different approaches and methods to understand, analyze, and ultimately help solve contemporary global issues and challenges.

International Studies students will be exposed to topics such as global health trends, human rights and refugees, cultural homogenization and hybridization, environmental and energy crises, terrorism, transnational social movements, immigration, and the spread of technology.

The major will draw on methods developed in specific disciplines such as economics, sociology, psychology, comparative literature, political science, anthropology, and history, and some methods emerging from cross-disciplinary and inter-disciplinary
International Studies Major Requirements

Sub-Plan (12 credits)

Area of Interest

The four sub-plans represent four different themes or areas of interest. Students must choose one sub-plan and take at least four courses (minimum 12 credits) from that sub-plan to gain knowledge in one area. One of the courses must be at the 400 level. The four courses must be taken in two or more different academic subjects. Requirements vary between sub-plans.

Students electing the Political Economy and Development sub-plan must complete ECON 101 (grade of C or better) as a prerequisite and at least one other ECON course (from the approved PED sub-plan list) as a sub-plan course.

Students electing the Comparative Culture and Identity sub-plan must complete COMPLIT 240, INTSTD 205, or ROMLANG/HIST/JUDAIC 253 as one of the four courses from the approved CCI sub-plan list.

International Security, Norms and Cooperation (ISNC)
In this sub-plan, students take courses that help them reason about the international system of nation-states and of peoples with both competing and overlapping interests. Among the topics covered are international relations, human rights, human security, international organizations, transnational social movements, war-making and peace-making, intra- and inter-state violence.

Political Economy and Development (PED)
In this sub-plan, students take courses that help them reason about the global economy and about comparing the political economies of nation-states and regions. Among the topics covered are international economics, political and economic development, regulation of economies, international trade, political contestation over economics, government budgeting, comparative labor economics, and political-economic history.

Comparative Culture and Identity (CCI)
In this sub-plan, students take courses that help them understand the global richness of behavioral, literary, and artistic expressions reflecting the diversity of the human experience. Among the topics covered are theories of culture, theories of identity, comparative belief systems and societal organizations, nationalism, comparative literary and film traditions, comparative ideologies, colonialism and post-colonialism, global arts, comparative gender studies, and cultural transmission.

Global Environment and Health (GEH)
In this sub-plan, students take courses that help them understand global trends in public health and in the natural environment as these intersect with the human experience. Among the topics covered are global public health, comparative health policy, epidemics and pandemics, comparative environmental policy, comparative history of mental health treatments across countries, environmental disasters, and climate change.

Sub-plan courses are from many different disciplines and are characterized by their international content, their rigor, and their comparative elements. The term-specific course lists can be found on the PICS website on PICS Courses page.
Please note that only the PICS director can approve courses used towards the sub-plan requirement that are not already found on the pre-approved list. Students sometimes find courses that are suitable for their programs and can petition to have them approved by filling out the online PICS Course Approval Form. (Login with Kerberos username and password).

Core Courses (7 credits)

Breadth, Method, and Depth

The three core courses in International Studies provide students with breadth, method, and depth:

INTLSTD 101 (3 prerequisite credits, not included in the minimum 34 credits)

This is the introductory core course for the International Studies major at the University of Michigan. The course explores human rights, human development, and human security in historical and comparative perspective using multiple disciplinary approaches. The curriculum is divided into six modules that cover:

- globalization
- international relations and organizations
- human rights and humanitarianism
- global environment and health
- human development
- culture and identity

The purpose of this course is to explore the ways in which ideas, people, goods, services, diseases, and natural resources have flowed across political and cultural borders during human history, to examine the consequences of those flows, and to understand how an interest in these topics can be the basis of a professional career.
INTLSTD 301 (4 credits)
Prerequisite: INTLSTD 101 enforced at registration
This course is a focused and in-depth investigation of global phenomena, with attention to human rights, global health, human security (civil conflict, economic development, social welfare, and health care), or sustainable economic and ecological systems. Readings rely on multiple methods and disciplinary approaches. In the process of studying these global phenomena, students discuss the strengths of specific methods and disciplinary approaches in improving their understanding of issues and problems that cut across nation-state boundaries.

Please note INTLSTD 301 currently offers one topic per semester and that the topic varies. Some examples of topics offered:

- Political Economy of Long-Run Development
- Theory and Practice of Human Rights
- Concepts in Global Health

INTLSTD 401 (3 credits)
Prerequisites: Declared International Studies major/minor of junior standing or above enforced at registration. May be elected twice for credit.

This course is an advanced seminar designed to bring an interdisciplinary perspective to the study of a topic of international significance. INTLSTD 401 has a variety of topics each semester. Courses offered may include:

- Gender, War, and Peace
- Human Rights
- Achieving Liberalization: Influences and Issues in Postwar Democratization
- The End of Life in Cross-Cultural Perspective
- Women & War: Contemporary and Historical Perspective
- Historical and Political Origins of Economic Growth
- Gender, Sexuality, and International Human Rights Law
- Never Again? Genocides & Mass Atrocities of the 20th Century
- The Conquest of Nature
- Public Health in Conflict and Reconstruction
- Experimental Approaches to the Political Economy of Development

Research Methods (3 credits)
Develop Analytical Skills

At least one research methods course is required from each sub-plan; select a course from the following list.

- International Security, Norms and Cooperation
  ECON 401: Intermediate Microeconomic Theory
  ECON 451: Intermediate Introduction to Statistics and Econometrics
POLSCI 300: Quantitative Empirical Methods of Political Science
POLSCI 391: Introduction to Modeling Political Processes

Regional (3 credits)
Expertise in a Geographic Region

Students select one course devoted to a single world region or country that is related to foreign language of study that is approved by an International Studies advisor.

Electives (9 credits)
Expand and Personalize Your Major

The electives are designed to allow students to further personalize their major. Students elect three advanced courses which are expected to build upon the theme of their sub-plans or regional focus. The selected courses should thus contribute to the coherence of the student’s overall concentration. Students may select additional sub-plan, regional, or relevant study abroad courses; however, there is no preapproved list of electives. Because there is no preapproved list, students must seek and obtain the approval of elective courses on a course-by-course basis — from a PICS advisor in person or through is-advising@umich.edu. It is strongly advised that this approval be obtained before taking the class.

Language (not a credit bearing requirement)

All International Studies majors must attain six-term proficiency (three years) in a language other than English, during their course of study. For more information on the International Studies major and minor Language Requirement see pg. 10.

International Studies Minor Requirements

The International Studies minor is an excellent complement to nearly any major, or for students planning to pursue advanced degrees in many fields including international relations, international law, or public policy. It provides undergraduate students with a challenging program of study that focuses on a region and a theme, advanced proficiency in a foreign language, access to special interdisciplinary seminars on international topics, and opportunities for study abroad. The International Studies minor is student designed and advisor approved, meaning curriculum has to be created in collaboration with a PICS advisor. Geographic and thematic course selections must possess intellectual coherence, with a clear and logical connection between the focus of the selected geographic and thematic courses. Four terms of language is required to declare.

Requirements:
- 18 credits
- Six-term language proficiency (not a credit bearing requirement). The language is specific to the focus of geographic study.
- Geographic emphasis composed of three courses devoted to a single world region or country. At least two of these courses must be 300-level or above.
- Thematic emphasis composed of three courses devoted to a given theme or topic. At least two of these courses must be 300-level or above.
- International Studies Advanced Topics Seminar (INTLSTD 401)

International Studies Major and Minor
Language Requirement

Language study is an intrinsic part of the field of International Studies. The International Studies language requirement ensures that International Studies majors and minors have an advanced language and cultural proficiency in a language other than English, which enhances their prospects of employment and future career opportunities. Being proficient in another language will expose postsecondary students to career fields they might not have known about without this academic background. The postsecondary experience can also be greatly enhanced by study abroad and travel abroad programs when students have multilingual skills.

Therefore, the six-term proficiency foreign language requirement for International Studies majors and minors is a critical and beneficial aspect of the program.

Please note:

- This is not a credit bearing requirement for the International Studies major or minor. Any coursework taken to satisfy the language requirement will be in addition to the 34 minimum credit hours required for the International Studies major and the 18 minimum credit hours requirement for the International Studies minor.

- Foreign languages that are not offered at U-M may not be used to satisfy the International Studies language requirement.

- Students entering U-M with previous language training will be required to take a placement exam prior to/during orientation in order to ascertain the appropriate level at which to continue language study. Placement exams normally determine up to four terms of language study.

- The College of Literature, Science, and the Arts (LSA) students are required to achieve a four-term language proficiency in a language other than English. If a student successfully tests out of four terms of language and has already acquired advanced proficiency, the student’s language skills must be certified by a U-M language instructor before the International Studies six-term language requirement can be waived. PICS has a language certification form that may waive the six-term language requirement if the student can confirm by a U-M language instructor that he or she has six-term proficiency in speaking, listening, reading, and writing at third year college level in his or her native language. If a U-M language instructor agrees to assess your language (be advised that language instructors are not obligated to complete this form and some departments will not) be prepared to present the following: program descriptions, course syllabi, instructional materials, official transcripts, instructors’ letters, and other supporting documents or materials. Questions regarding the language certification form should be directed to a PICS advisor.

- Students who wish to satisfy their language requirement through studying abroad should discuss this with a PICS advisor. Study abroad courses are typically used for the International Studies major or minor elective and regional requirements. Students studying abroad on a non-U-M sponsored program must complete and submit a Current Student Transfer Credit Pre-Evaluation form to the U-M Office of Undergraduate Admissions Office. Once the credits have been approved by the admissions office evaluators, a student may submit his/her abroad course descriptions to a PICS advisor to determine any courses that can fulfill the major/minor requirements.

Heritage and Native Speakers

- Heritage speakers (i.e. student born in the U.S. but growing up with a different language) should choose the heritage tracks offered by many language departments, please consult with the respective language departments to determine the appropriate course to enroll in.

- Native speakers (i.e. students who were born and raised through high school in a different country) and international students can get their language requirement waived by a PICS advisor.

Four Semesters of One Foreign Language and Two Semesters of Another (4+2 option)

- Students may appeal the sixth term of a single language (although six terms of one language is strongly recommended in most cases) and substitute a minimum of two terms of language relevant to their defined program to total six terms of language study. Each case is reviewed individually and students must make a compelling case. For example, if a student has a special interest in Africa and this is reflected in the student’s previous coursework, and he/she has four semesters of French and wishes to add two semesters of an African language, this may be permissible. Similarly, if a student has a great interest in the Middle East, a combination of Hebrew/Arabic may be permissible. Other possible combinations are Spanish/Portuguese if a special interest in Latin America can be demonstrated. However, a combination of Spanish and Italian or French is not permissible. Please note that if you are planning to satisfy the International Studies language requirement through using two different languages (4+2 terms) you must obtain pre-approval. Questions regarding this should be directed to your PICS advisor.

- PICS encourages the study of less commonly taught languages and will in most cases approve a 4+2 option if students take all courses available in a less commonly taught language.

- For any questions about the International Studies language requirement, please email is-advising@umich.edu.

Regional Requirement and Language

- The International Studies regional requirement should focus on a single world region as it connects to your language of study. Upper-level language courses beyond the sixth-term language requirement that have a focus on culture, history, arts, etc. and may work as a regional course, as well as relevant study abroad courses. The regional course does not have to be taught in the student’s foreign language of study.

International Studies Honors Plan

The Program in International and Comparative Studies (PICS) offers an Honors Plan for International Studies majors with an overall GPA of 3.4 and with a grade of B+ or better in INTLSTD 101. Students elect INTLSTD 498 in the fall and INTLSTD 499 in the winter (the senior Honors proseminars) during their senior year and write a major research paper under the direction of a faculty advisor and the instructor of INTLSTD 498-499.

- By mid-July, INTLSTD 498.001 will be open to all students who have expressed an interest in the plan. Students will be granted an override and should register for the course if they want to be in the plan.
- Not all students who want to be in the Honors Plan will be accepted. If not accepted, students will have to drop INTLSTD 498.001. As an alternative, the student can design an Independent Study via INTLSTD 491 to pursue a longer term paper for the Fall or Winter Semester.
- Applications are due usually at the beginning of September and students will be notified of their status (accepted or not accepted) before the first class meeting.
- Students are required to write an Honors thesis and will be responsible for obtaining a faculty member to serve as a thesis advisor. Both the thesis topic and the thesis advisor must be approved by the PICS director or the INTLSTD 498-499 instructor prior to beginning work on the thesis.
- Students planning to conduct interviews with human subjects the summer prior to joining the International Studies Honors plan should contact Anthony Marcum at amarcum@umich.edu, PhD, PICS Honors instructor, first. All students will need to complete an application with the U-M Institutional Review Board (IRB). Anthony Marcum, PhD, can help students navigate this process.
- Students graduating at the end of the fall semester are not eligible for the Honors Plan. Students must complete INTLSTD 498.001 in the fall semester and INTSLTD 499.001 in the winter semester to complete the Honors Plan.

Please see the PICS Honors Plan webpage for more information.
Building Skill Sets Outside the Classroom

Employers seek out individuals who can demonstrate excellent verbal and written communication skills, teamwork and interpersonal skills, initiative, and a strong work ethic. International Studies students are encouraged to participate in student organizations such as, the Honor Society for International Studies – Sigma Iota Rho, Blue Model United Nations, or publish articles through the Michigan Journal of International Affairs or the Michigan Foreign Policy Council. Review student organizations associated with PICS on the PICS Student Organizations page. Students can also attend the International Institute’s wide variety of lectures on international topics.

Student organizations, research with International Studies faculty, and campus employment offer additional opportunities to add to the skills developed in class. Other options include off-campus employment or volunteering in the community. Programs such as Michigan in Washington can have an international component, and a summer internship opportunities through the LSA Opportunity Hub may be the best way of all to test out a career field and develop marketable skills. Review the PICS Careers page for more resources.

Although studying abroad is not mandatory, it is highly encouraged. A cross-cultural experience broadens your perspective and helps you develop skills that are sought out by future employers. Students should visit the Center for Global and Intercultural Studies (CGIS), U-M’s study abroad office, to learn more about study abroad program opportunities. PICS offers some limited funding to International Studies majors that study, intern, or conduct research abroad. For more information about this please go to Funding Opportunities, pg. 16.
Funding Opportunities

PICS extends financial support to University of Michigan students engaging in projects related to: human rights, international development, international security and cooperation, global health and environment, and comparative culture and identity. Specifically, the Program administers grants for study abroad, research, and internships to International Studies majors and minors in the form of Summer Research and Internship Grants and the Study Abroad Grants. In addition, the Rose Silverman Internship Fund supports international internships, the William Siegel and Margaret Swaine funds support Longwoods fellows for student internship and research abroad.

PICS also administers the Arctic Internship Fellowship which is open to all University of Michigan undergraduate students, and the International Human Rights Fellowship which is specifically open to all LSA undergraduate students. PICS keeps track of other various internship, research, and funding opportunities in and related to international issues on the PICS announcement blog. PICS is also a part of the International Institute which provides several additional funding opportunities to undergraduate students, including those from the Donia Human Rights Center.

Eligibility
- U-M registered students
- Graduating students and alumni are not eligible. You must be a continuing student with at least one remaining term of enrollment beyond the term in which your program abroad occurs.
- Review each opportunity individually for additional eligibility requirements.
Year Round Funding Opportunities

- Study Abroad Funding: PICS offers limited funding for International Studies majors and minors at the University of Michigan who will be participating in a formal, for credit, U-M sponsored and organized, study abroad program during the academic year or summer.

Summer Funding Opportunities

- PICS Summer Research and Internship Grants: Funding specifically for International Studies majors and minors planning to conduct a summer internship or research abroad. Students should demonstrate that internship assignment was secured from a reputable organization.
- Arctic Internships: For any undergraduate student seeking summer internship in the Arctic region.
- International Human Rights Fellowship: For LSA undergraduates from any major seeking a summer internship focused on international human rights.

All applications are available in M-Compass.

Deadlines

Applications for Study Abroad Funding are accepted year round (for fall, winter, and summer U-M sponsored and organized study abroad programs). Application deadlines for all other opportunities vary from year to year, but typically applications are due in February or March. Please review the individual M-Compass pages for exact deadlines.

Developing a Global Perspective

The International Studies major is intended for students planning to pursue advanced degrees or careers in international law, international business, public policy, global health, and government or nongovernmental organizations with an international focus. The major is ideal for students interested in learning a foreign language and exploring international topics from a comparative perspective. As an International Studies major, you will develop the ability to understand the differences in economic, political, and cultural development. Through language training and study, you will also develop excellent analytical and communication skills. International Studies majors are strongly encouraged, but not required, to study abroad. Related fields include disciplines such as political science, history, economics, public policy, public health, environment, anthropology, psychology, sociology, languages and literatures, comparative literature, law, business, and communications.

International Studies alumni work in a wide range of careers and pursue advanced degrees. Visit the U-M Career Center and LSA Opportunity Hub early and often and be sure to request to join the PICS LinkedIn group to see what other current International Studies students and alumni are doing in their careers. Please review the PICS Career page for more resources.
PICS Advising

International Studies students are encouraged to utilize our advising services frequently to make sure they are on track to graduate. Since each student has an individual interdisciplinary program, it is important that courses are pre-approved, especially when students are planning to study abroad. Your PICS advisor can plan your program with you, provide input and feedback, help you find resources, and advocate for and problem solve with you.

International studies advisors are available to meet with undeclared students who would like to learn more about the program, and also with current majors and minors who would like to discuss course selection, major or minor requirements, senior releases, and other matters of concern. Advising appointments are available In Person, Phone, and/or Virtual formats. Please make your advising appointment by using the online advising appointment system.

International Studies students and prospective students should see their PICS advisor:

- Before declaring, to make a plan for how and when to complete requirements
- To declare
- To plan, check progress and get courses approved, and to make sure plan is in compliance with LSA policies, at least once a semester
- Course selection for registration
- Joint-degree programs
- Before studying abroad
- PICS Honors Plan
- To get their release the semester prior to graduating

Undeclared students should plan to attend one of the International Studies Information Sessions to learn more. For more detailed information about International Studies advising, please visit the PICS Advising page.

Undergraduate advising is offered by many units on campus. For general advice from orientation through graduation, regardless of your major or minor, contact the Newnan Academic Advising Center. For students seeking postgraduate employment, contact the Career Center. Majors and minors seeking career or graduate school advice are encouraged to consult the PICS Careers page. They may also schedule a meeting with PICS director and/or LSA undergraduate advisors or an advisor at the Career Center. Lastly, the LSA Opportunity Hub is a College of LSA initiative dedicated to pairing the broad and valuable skills of a liberal arts education with real-life experience. The LSA Opportunity Hub provides strategic career advising, professional development training, and assists in connecting LSA students with employers and alumni.
How to Graduate

As you enter your senior year, please make sure to complete all critical major or minor requirements and follow the steps below to ensure that you can graduate on time. Please note that any required courses applied towards your International Studies major must be completed with a grade of C- or better; otherwise, you will not be eligible to graduate.

To graduate you must:

1. Make an appointments with your PICS advisor as well as with your general academic advisor to discuss what requirements are met and how to fulfill the remaining requirements. This information will be entered in the release in your online file, where the appropriate auditing office receives it.

2. In order to graduate, seniors must get a release from each of their majors and minors before they will be audited. The release should be submitted prior to registering for the last semester of classes.

3. In order to be evaluated for graduation, every student must have an official academic degree audit.

4. Students should update their PICS advisor if they change or add International Studies major or minor courses to their schedule in their final semester (especially regional and/or elective courses). This will ensure that their senior release is accurate. Please review and RSVP for the PICS Graduation Ceremony.

5. Apply for graduation by logging onto Wolverine Access. Go to Student Business, click on Student Center, go to the "other academic..." drop-down menu in the Academics section, and select "Apply for Graduation." Make sure to verify your permanent address and specify how you want your name to appear on your diploma.

Please keep in mind that "walking" in the commencement ceremonies organized by the University of Michigan and PICS is not confirmation of your graduation. In the weeks following the commencement ceremonies, your completed coursework will be evaluated by the appropriate auditing office. Degrees will be conferred upon students who have applied to graduate and have fulfilled all degree requirements; including LSA college and distribution requirements as well as requirements for all declared majors and minors. Non-LSA students will be evaluated by their home schools.

Follow these steps to verify completion of:

- International Studies major or minor requirements
- outstanding courses or formalities regarding study abroad or transfer credit that must be completed in order to graduate with an International Studies major or minor

Frequently Asked Questions About the International Studies Major

General Information:

Q: Are there any pre-requisites for the International Studies (IS) major?

A: Yes. Students must complete INTLSTD 101 with a grade of C- or better. Students must be enrolled in their fourth semester of language (or placed out). Students planning on electing the Political Economy and Development sub-plan must first complete ECON 101 with a C or better so that they are eligible to enroll in one upper level ECON course as part of their sub-plan requirement. Please note that a C or better in ECON 101 is an enforced pre-requisite to enroll in the 300-level ECON courses approved for the PED sub-plan.

Q: May I count 100 level courses toward the major?

A: 100-level courses may not be counted toward an International Studies major.

Q: What are the requirements for the International Studies Honors Plan?

A: If you are considering an Honors plan, you must have an overall GPA of 3.4 with a grade of B+ or better in your INTLSTD 101 class. During your senior year, you will enroll in two additional three-credit classes: INTLSTD 498 in the fall, and INTLSTD 499 in the winter. You will also be required to write an Honors thesis, and you will be responsible for finding a faculty member to serve as your thesis advisor. Both your thesis topic and your thesis advisor must be approved by the PICS director before you start working on the thesis. For detailed information please see the PICS Honors Plan page.

Q: How many double-counted courses will apply toward my double major?

A: PICS does not have a limit on the number of courses double counted with a second major.

Q: May I take a course towards my International Studies major or minor P/F?

A: All courses going towards your International Studies major or minor require a letter grade with exclusion of fifth-term or sixth-term language.

Q: What is the minimum grade I can receive in a course going towards my International major?

A: C-.
Q: Is it possible for me to apply alternative credits (e.g. an internship, transfer credits, independent study, or non-LSA courses) toward an International Studies major?

A: In some cases it is, but each request will need to be evaluated on a case-by-case basis. PICS offers an independent study course, INTLSTD 491. The research needs to be approved by the PICS director before you can enroll in INTLSTD 491. You must provide a one-page written proposal of the academic goal and plan for the study and a written agreement between you and the faculty member who will sponsor your study. Please include a description of the study, clearly articulated expectations, interim deadlines, and a final deadline for completion of the study. The PICS course number for approved internships is INTLSTD 399. Requests for internship credit must be petitioned for credit toward the major. Please e-mail is-advising@umich.edu for more information.

Transfer credits must post to your official U-M transcript at 200 level or above and be directly related to your sub plan focus or region of study. Transfer courses must be pre-approved by a PICS advisor. In both of these cases, however, credit toward the sub-plan core is unlikely to be granted—but credit as an elective is possible. To seek approval for a course you've taken or are thinking of taking, please follow the standard course approval instructions (for either sub-plans or electives) detailed below.

Q: What counts as a regional course?

A: A regional course should focus on a single world region as it connects to your language of study. Upper-level language courses beyond the sixth-term language requirement that have a focus on culture, history, arts, etc. and may work as a regional course as well as relevant study abroad courses. Regional courses must be approved by a PICS advisor.

Examples:

Language: Spanish  Region: Latin America

Courses: ANTHRCUL 319: Latin American Society and Culture; STDABRD 303: CGIS: Environment and Sustainable Development in San Jose, Costa Rica

Language: French  Region: Western Europe

Courses: FRENCH 369: Literature, History, and Culture of Modernity; WOMENSTD 317: Women and Gender in Early Modern Europe, 1500-1800

Q: How does study abroad credit count toward my major?

A: First, you have to receive U-M credit. If your study abroad program is arranged through the Center for Global and Intercultural Study (CGIS) then this should not be an issue, but if your program is organized by another university you must arrange for that university to transfer the credits, and for U-M to accept them. We encourage you to make sure this is all arranged to your satisfaction before you commit to any given non-U-M study abroad program.

Study abroad credits, once they are posted to your U-M transcript, may be used to satisfy either the one regional course requirement or the elective requirements. In general, only one course may be counted toward the sub-plan core per semester abroad, with any exceptions approved by the PICS director. Course descriptions are required for all study abroad courses you want approved.

Sub-plans:

Q: How would I get a course approved for inclusion in a sub-plan?

A: With the many choices available on the sub-plan menus of approved courses, most students are able to find the courses they both need and want to take. Nevertheless, if you come upon a course that you think is appropriate for your sub-plan, but it is not on the approved list, we’ll review it. To request a course review, you will need to fill out the online Course Approval Form. The director of PICS will review your request and get back to you shortly.

Q: What if none of the sub-plans fit exactly what I am looking for, may I create my own sub-plan for the major?

A: No.

Q: Can I choose more than one sub-plan?

A: No.

Language:

Q: May I take more than one language in the same region to reach the six semester requirement?

A: Students may appeal the sixth term of a single language (although six-terms of one language are strongly recommended in most cases) and substitute a minimum of two terms of language relevant to their defined program to total six terms of language study. Each case is reviewed individually and students must make a compelling case. For example, if a student has a special interest in Africa and this is reflected in the student’s previous coursework, and he/she has four semesters of French and wishes to add two semesters of an African language, this may be permissible. Similarly, if a student has a great interest in the Middle East a combination of Hebrew/Arabic may be permissible. Other possible combinations are Spanish/Portuguese if a special interest in Latin America can be demonstrated. However, a combination of Spanish and Italian or French is not permissible. Please note that if you are planning to satisfy the PICS language requirement through using two different languages (4+2 terms) you must obtain pre-approval. Questions regarding this should be directed to your PICS advisor via is-advising@umich.edu.

Q: What is sixth-term language proficiency?

A: All International Studies majors must attain six-term proficiency, in a language other than English, during their course of study. To clarify what constitutes language proficiency, please see pgs. 9-12. Residential College (RC) students complete RCLANG 320: Readings in French, RCLANG 321: Readings in German, or RCLANG 324: Readings in Spanish respective to their language of study to satisfy the sixth-term of language requirement. Please contact a PICS advisor via is-advising@umich.edu if your language is not listed.

Q: Does my language have to match my region?

A: Yes. If your language of study is Spanish, for example, you may focus on any Spanish-speaking country or region. If you receive approval to study both Spanish and Quechua (an indigenous language of the South American Andes), you would then be required to focus on the region of South American in which both Spanish and Quechua are spoken.

Core Courses:

Q: When should I plan to take INTLSTD 301 and INTLSTD 401? Am I required to take them in order?

A: We would like to see you take the core courses in order, but we understand that this is not always feasible and we do not require it. Take 301 and 401 in whatever order works best with your schedule, even if that means you take two of them concurrently. Keep in mind the INTLSTD 401 seminar is restricted to 3rd- and 4th-year students only.

Q: What semesters are 101, 301, and 401 offered?

A: INTLSTD 101, 301 and 401 are offered in the fall and winter semesters of each year. These courses are also sometimes offered in the spring and/or summer terms. Please review the PICS Courses page to review what is being offered this semester.

Q: Is there a way for me to get a course approved as INTLSTD 301 and 401?

A: No. You'll have to take a genuine INTLSTD 301 and 401 course. INTLSTD 301, with varying topics, is offered each fall and winter term. There are several INTLSTD 401 seminars, with varying topics, offered each fall and winter term.

Electives:

Q: How do I get a course approved as an elective?

A: Email the course title and course description to a PICS advisor. Include a note with the language you're studying, your sub-plan focus, and your UMID number. You may also schedule an advising appointment for elective course approvals.

Q: What kinds of courses may I take as electives?

A: Your electives should focus on the world region as it connects to your language of study, or you may elect courses that build upon your sub-plan focus. There is no pre-approved list for electives. You may take additional sub-plans (your selected sub-plan only), regional, or relevant study abroad courses. Remember all electives must be pre-approved by a PICS advisor.
Q: May I select courses from a different sub-plan and count them among my electives?

A: Yes, only if the course in question connects to your world region or sub-plan focus. Please bear in mind all electives must be pre-approved by a PICS advisor.

Q: Are there restrictions on elective courses other than the kind of course? For example, is there a limit to how many 200- or 300-level courses I might count toward my elective requirement?

A: The only restriction is that you may not apply 100-level courses toward the satisfaction of your elective requirements.

Mapping for the International Security, Norms and Cooperation Sub-Plan

International Studies Major: 34 credits, sixth-term language. Students must receive a letter grade of C- or better in all International Studies related courses. Students must choose one sub-plan and take at least four courses from that sub-plan. One of the courses must be at the 400 level and the four courses must be taken in two or more academic subjects.

International Security, Norms and Cooperation (ISNC)

In this sub-plan, students take courses that help them reason about the international system of nation-states and of peoples with both competing and overlapping interests. Among the topics covered are international relations, human rights, human security, international organizations, transnational social movements, war-making and peace-making, intra- and inter-state violence.

First Year

Prerequisites: Students must complete INTLSTD 101 with a grade of C- or better and must be enrolled in fourth semester of language (or placed out) to declare this major.

Mapping for the Political Economy and Development Sub-Plan

International Studies Major: 34 credits, sixth-term language. Students must receive a letter grade of C- or better in all International Studies related courses. Students must choose one sub-plan and take at least four courses from that sub-plan. One of the courses must be at the 400 level and the four courses must be taken in two or more academic subjects.

Political Economy and Development (PED)

In this sub-plan, students take courses that help them reason about the global economy and about comparing the political economies of nation-states and regions. Among the topics covered are international economics, political and economic development, regulation of economies, international trade, political contestation over economics, government budgeting, comparative labor economics, and political-economic history.*

*Students who select this sub-plan, must take one economics course from the approved PED sub-plan list from the Economics department at U-M. Please be aware that you may need to take ECON 102 and/or ECON 401 AND get a C or better grade to get into upper level economics courses.

First Year

Prerequisites: Students must complete INTLSTD 101 with a grade of C- or better and must be enrolled in fourth semester of language (or placed out) to declare this major. Students must also successfully complete ECON 101 with a grade of C or better, if selecting PED as a sub-plan focus.

Mapping for the Comparative Culture and Identity Sub-Plan

International Studies Major: 34 credits, sixth-term language. Students must receive a letter grade of C- or better in all International Studies related courses. Students must choose one sub-plan and take at least four courses from that sub-plan. One of the courses must be at the 400 level and the four courses must be taken in two or more academic subjects.

Comparative Culture and Identity (CCI)

In this sub-plan, students take courses that help them understand the global richness of behavioral, literary, and artistic expressions reflecting the diversity of the human experience. Among the topics covered are theories of culture, theories of identity, comparative belief systems and societal organizations, nationalism, comparative literary and film traditions, comparative ideologies, colonialism and post-colonialism, global arts, comparative gender studies, and cultural transmission.

Students who select this sub-plan, must take COMPLIT 240, INTLSTD 205 or HIST/JUDAIC/ROMLANG 253 as one of the required four sub-plan core courses. Courses available to satisfy research methods requirement differ for the ISNC, PED, and GEH sub-plans. Please review the CCI page for more information.

Mapping for the Global Environment and Health Sub-Plan

International Studies Major: 34 credits, sixth-term language. Students must receive a letter grade of C- or better in all International Studies related courses. Students must choose one sub-plan and take at least four courses from that sub-plan. One of the courses must be at the 400 level and the four courses must be taken in two or more academic subjects.

Global Environment and Health (GEH)
In this sub-plan, students take courses that help them understand global trends in public health and in the natural environment as these intersect with the human experience. Among the topics covered are global public health, comparative health policy, epidemics and pandemics, comparative environmental policy, comparative history of mental health treatments across countries, environmental disasters, and climate change.

First Year
Prerequisites: Students must complete INTLSTD 101 with a grade of C- or better and must be enrolled in fourth semester of language (or placed out) to declare this major.
