

The Department of Slavic Languages and Literatures and the Center for Russian, East European, and Eurasian Studies are offering scholarships of $1,000 for Czech language study at the University of Michigan during the academic year.

Eligibility Criteria: Open to all U-M undergraduate students studying the Czech language at the University of Michigan for one academic year. The following criteria must be fulfilled:

- Two consecutive terms of the appropriate Czech language sequence;
- Courses must be taken in Fall and Winter terms; and
- Students must receive a grade of B- or better in both courses.

Application Deadline: Students must apply by the end of the first week of Fall term to be considered for the academic year scholarship.

Application Submission: Interested students should complete the application on the Slavic Department's website at lsa.umich.edu/slavic.

Review Process: Applications are reviewed by a selection committee; students will be notified of the academic year scholarship in mid-September.

Scholarship Disbursement: Scholarships will be disbursed at the completion of the Winter term, after grades have been submitted and evaluated.
