Over 150 people came together in the Fall of 2003 at the University of Michigan Nichols Arboretum to create a work of art. They decided to join together with their community for 20,000 reasons. To make a statement. To honor a memory. To pose a question. To volunteer their time and energy to realize an idea.

Imagine/Align is a site-specific, community-based art installation blooming now for the second time. This project, by artist Susan Skarsgard, is a one-half mile long line of 20,000 yellow daffodils as far as the eye can see, traversing the environment, mapping thought and inspiring contemplation on the idea of lines, borders and imposed definitions.

This imaginary “drawing” separates the open landscape using daffodils as its ephemeral mark. They will come up, bloom, and die away every year in their own natural rhythm. There has been no attempt to alter its naturalization.
