12. Involvement in Interdisciplinary Research Centers

Management Committee “LFoRCe”: Leuven Food Science and Nutrition Research Center, This center unites all researchers from all fields related to Food research. I represent the Humanities and Social Sciences in the management committee, since its inception in 2008.

Member, Metaforum “think tank” on Communicative Practices in Medicine. METAFORUM unites faculty members from different disciplines. Every year they develop a multidisciplinary view of a particular topic, with special emphasis on ethics. In 2013/2014 I was a member of a group on the challenges of Evidence Based Medicine for communicating research findings and responding to societal challenges. (summary via: <http://www.kuleuven.be/metaforum/page.php?FILE=wg&LAN=E&ID=37>)

13. Editorial Responsibilities

a. Course and Curriculum Development

S105 Research Seminar. I received a grant from the Education Innovation Council of the University of Leuven in 2000 to develop new teaching and evaluation methods for this course/seminar. During an evaluation of the courses funded by the program I was awarded a “golden computer mouse” for best ICT innovation project. It is still listed among the “best practices” of the University Teaching Support Service.

In 2002 I was department head and education director for the then Department of Communication at Leuven. In 1999 the European Union had decided to abolish differences between educational systems in Europe and to replace them with a “Bachelor/Master” structure, modeled after the British and American models. I had to design a bachelor and master program, assess existing courses and redesign them to fit into the new model, negotiate with faculty members about the distribution of labor, negotiate with other departments about opening or closing courses for students from other departments, and develop and submit the necessary paperwork to the University and to the Flemish Ministry of Education (which decides which degrees get government accreditation).

From 2010 to 2013 I was associate dean of research and as such responsible for developing a PhD program. Before 2010 there was no coursework for PhD-students, as Leuven followed the British model where PhD students work on independent research and a dissertation for 4 to 6 years. In the new system PhD students had to complete coursework and collect credits they would need to graduate from a PhD training program before they were allowed to submit a doctoral dissertation. I designed a PhD program that was acceptable for the four departments of the Faculty of Social Sciences and oversaw the implementation of it. I was a member of the governing board of the university-wide Graduate School, which developed initiatives for PhD-students across disciplines – with a particular emphasis on so-called “transferrable skills”, designed to be useful for later job-searches.

b. Evidence of Involvement in Graduate Research Programs

a. Dissertations completed under my direction

Dirikx, A., (2012). Good Cop, Bad Cop, Adolescents' Perceptions of the Police: Associations with Old and New media. (Currently, head of internal and external communication, University of Leuven)

Custers, K., (2012). Television and the cultivation of fear of crime: Unravelling the black box. (Currently Postdoc for the FWO (Fund for Scientific Research))

Dossche, D., (2010). How the research method affects cultivation outcomes. (Currently employed as analyst by the City of Aalst).

Lemal, M., (2010). "It could happen to you." Television and health risk perception. (Currently department head at the department of communication, Thomas More Community College, Mechelen)

Beullens, K., (2009). Stuurloos? Een onderzoek naar het verband tussen mediagebruik en risicogedrag in het verkeer bij jongeren (Currently Assistant professor, U of Leuven)

Gutschoven, K., (2007). Gezondheidsempowerment en de paradigmaverschuiving in de gezondheidszorg : de rol van het Internet. (Currently head of Marketing and Business Development, Roche Diagnostics Corporation, Indianapolis, IN, USA).

Van Mierlo, J., (2007). De rol van televisie in de cultivatie van percepties en attitudes in verband met geneeskunde en gezondheid. (Previously assistant professor at the Faculty of Medicine, U of Hasselt, Now head of H.R. Trudo Hospital, Hasselt, Belgium).

Eggermont, S., (2006). The impact of television viewing on adolescents' sexual socialization, (Currently professor and education chair, U of Leuven).

b. Advisor for the following graduate students:

Liese Exelmans, Elisabeth Timmerans, Lennert Coenen, Sara Nelissen (Leuven University)
Jana Wilbricht (University of Michigan)

c. Master's theses completed under my direction

Most Belgian students add a Master's degree to their Bachelor's degree, often in the same discipline. Both bachelor and master degrees are heavily subsidized by the government (the enrollment fee is about €500). This results in a high student/staff ratio. Since 2000 I have supervised approximately 300 master's theses. In about 50% of the cases a lot of the daily supervision was carried out by PhD-students, in the other cases the daily supervision came from me.

d. Honors program

At the University of Michigan, I have two honors students under my supervision in 2016-2017.

Professional, University, and Community Service and Experience

1. Professional Service

International Communication Association

Member Section committee, Outstanding article of the year award committee, (2004, 2005, 2009)

Paper reader, Mass Communication Division, Information Systems Division, Children, Adolescents and the Media Division (Multiple Years since 1996).

Dutch - Flemish Communication Association

Founding Member, Media Psychology Division, 2014.

Paper Reader, Several divisions (multiple years)

External Program Reviews

I chaired the 5-yearly external audit of Dutch Communication Programs in 2006. Dutch and Flemish university degrees are accredited by a Dutch/Belgian Accreditation board which organized independent audits of all programs every five years. The Auditing Committee visits and reviews each program, and ranks them. Programs can lose their accreditation, which would mean they are no longer allowed to offer that particular degree. The person who chaired the committee before I took over was prof. Dennis McQuail.

Foundation Review Panel

I have reviewed several projects for the NWO, the equivalent of the National Science Foundation in the Netherlands.

2. University Service

Member, Research council, 2007-2010. The Research Council organizes the peer-reviewed and competitive distribution of €250 mio of Government research funding for the University of Leuven. Projects are awarded on the basis of external review and track record. All project types are competitive. All applicants compete university-wide.

Member, Ethics review Board for the Humanities and Social Sciences, since 2014.

Member, Governing Board of the Graduate School of the Humanities and Social Sciences, 2010-2013.

Member, University Library Committee, 2010-2013

“Springfield Revisited: the Media as Socializing Force in the Lives of Young People” during the conference on “Young People and the Media”, organized by the Department of Criminology, January, 1998.

“What does TV teach us about life?” Lecture during the yearly “Vliebergh Session”, Faculty of Theology, August 1997.

“What we see is not always what we get: a critical appraisal of the literature on media effects” presentation for the “Children, Families, and Society” colloquium of the Psychology Alumni of the University of Leuven, November 1997

“The power of the Media: Does the News Determine What we Think?” Lecture during the colloquium on “Do the media threaten our freedoms? Ethical questions on the influence of the news media”. University of Leuven, Campus Kortrijk, October 1995.

4. School/Departmental Service

AT UNIVERSITY OF LEUVEN

Education Chair, Department of Communication, Leuven University 2000-2006

As education chair I was responsible for the development of new programs and for the content and quality of the courses. It also meant I sat on the faculty board. During my tenure I had to develop the transition to the bachelor/master model, had to develop the transition from end-of-year exams to end-of-term exams, the introduction of a credit system, the integration of several teaching colleges into the University and more.

Head of Department, Department of Communication, 2003-2005

I was head of the Department of Communication until KU Leuven made a university-wide change from a system of Departments to Research Groups. I oversaw the development of the two research groups that replaced the department.

Coordinator, School for Mass Communication Research, Leuven University 2005-2010

When KU Leuven moved to a system of Research Groups, I became responsible for one of the two research groups (called the “School for Mass Communication Research”) that developed from from the prior Department of Communication.

Associate Dean of Research, Faculty of Social Sciences, Leuven University 2010-2013

As associate dean I was responsible for the development of research at the Faculty of Social Sciences, the PhD program, the External Audit of the Research programs. I set up a monthly Research Management Council to coordinate research efforts of and between the research groups and to facilitate the dissemination of information on grant-opportunities.

Education Chair, PhD School, Faculty of Social Sciences, 2 Leuven University 010-2013

I was ex-officio education chair of the PhD school during my tenure as Associate Dean.

Member, recruiting, tenure, and promotion committee, Faculty of Social Sciences, Leuven University 2008-2016

Member, Professor Evaluation Committee, Leuven University 007-2016
